Lutheran Social Services of the National Capital Area Announces Transition of Chief Executive Officer

Lynn Tedesco Appointed as Interim CEO

Washington, D.C.— Lutheran Social Services of the National Capital Area (LSS/NCA) Board of Directors announced a change in executive leadership. Over the past three years, Christine Connell served as Chief Executive Officer. Mrs. Connell’s contributions and dedication to the organization are commendable during an era of agency transition.

The Board of Directors have appointed former board chair, Lynn J. Tedesco, as acting interim CEO. Lynn brings an extensive understanding and commitment to LSS/NCA as she has held significant volunteer roles within LSS/NCA for the past seven years. As the owner of Inthevent, LLC, a firm focused on event marketing and sponsorship management, as well as development for corporate and non-profit organizations, she has provided strategic consultation to global business for over 30 years.

“We are proud of our agencies legacy of service,” said Mary Warlick, Board Chair. “During a time when national and local policy changes are affecting our programming, new leadership will provide fresh perspective and ensure we continue as a thriving agency in the D.C. metro area. We appreciate Mrs. Connell’s contribution and dedication to the agency over the past 3 years”
